

when in france

a ghost looks in the window skeletal, her arms
drawn across a gray-blue shirt draped over protruding ribs she watches as I eat
warm creamy goat cheese cooked apples, toasted nuts honey-laced crepe
and she smiles